

By Ricardo (rds_forex89)

Sharing this pdf outside Athena FX group without consent can result on a 50,000€ fine.

Enjoy

Things to avoid on 5-15m strategy

1 - Curvy angles

When price loses momentum after crossing when it comes back to EMA you will notice EMA starts curving and getting flat. You can see this in real time once price touches the EMA it will be clear if its still pointing up/down strongly or if its curving. You should avoid any setups with this curve.

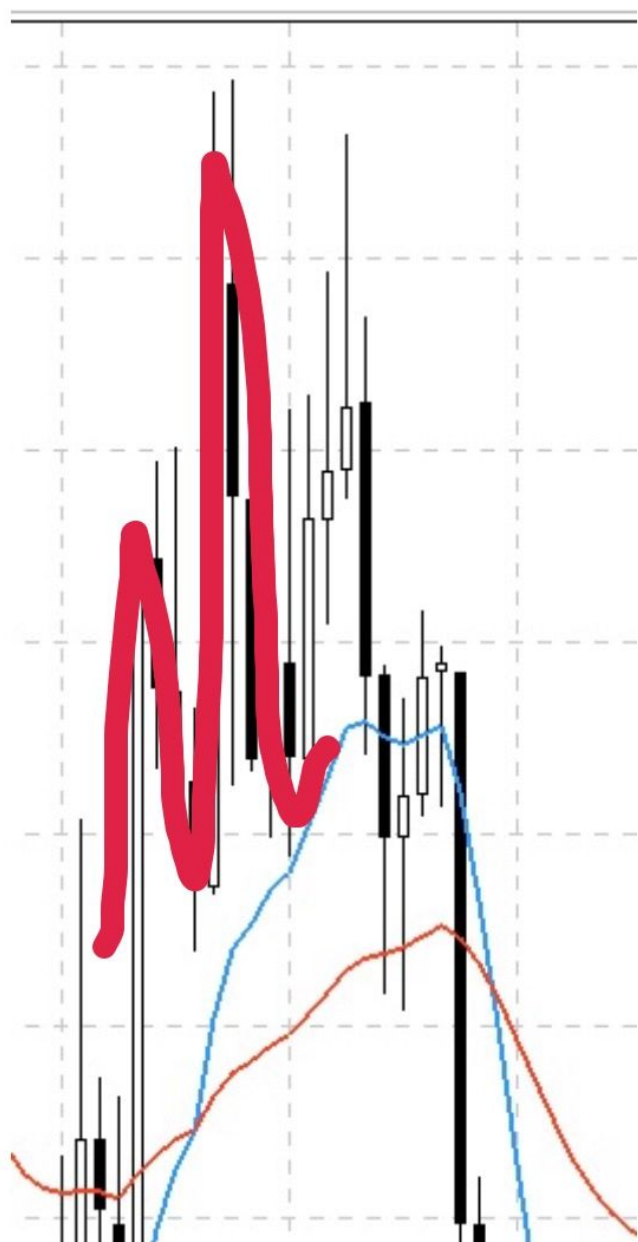

2- Consolidation

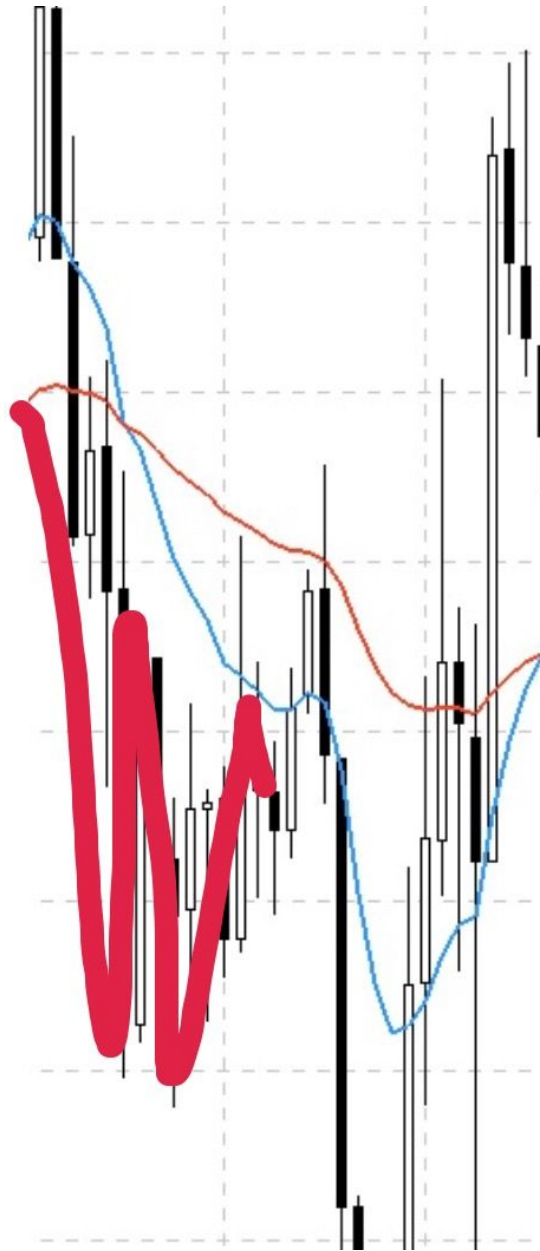

You will see multiple times we make couple of moves not touching the EMA and then retest it while consolidating, even if retest might look good sometimes we avoid any consolidation and nasty sideways move.

3- Second + Pullbacks

If price made one or more pullbacks before retesting, its invalid as it loses momentum. Lot of times this happens on consolidation but sometimes it will make a clean second pullback which might look good but avoid it.

PERFECT SETUP EXAMPLE

VISUAL REFERENCES OF WHAT TO LOOK FOR

Things to avoid in 1h/4h Strategy

1- « Channel » type EMA angle

On 1h/4h strategy we dont wait for cross but for a break above/below EMAs. Now sometimes price will get tighter like this and do like a « channel ». This shows a loss in momentum so avoid at all costs. We should have a nice step angle and not flat angles.

2- Consolidation and sideways

We avoid sideways movement which is usually associated to a lack of a clear break consolidating around the EMAs, avoid at all costs.

PERFECT SETUP EXAMPLE

VISUAL REFERENCES OF WHAT TO LOOK FOR

